FACTS and FANCIES

By Frank Fairborn

Well, the suspense is over.

The Judges have brought in their report and found everybody innocent but Gamey.

Stratton is an archangel, H. D. Jones is an angel, Frank Sullivan is a cherub, and all the rest of them are liars.

Well, I suppose a decision of that kind is better than one that threw a little blame on each side. All the people read the evidence and they can easily form an opinion as to whether the Judges overstepped the bounds of decency or not in shielding the accused minister.

The fact still remains that Gamey had on a certain day $1500.00 in hundreds and fifties, all Bank of Ontario bills and yet nobody knows where the money came from.

The fact also remains that Gamey deposited that $1500.00 in the Traders bank and the money was easily traced to the clearing house and back to the Ontario Bank without any difficulty. If it was traced from Gamey's hands why couldn't it be traced to Gamey's hands.

That money was put up either by the Grits or Tories and the whole people of this country has a right to know which party is guilty.

W. W. KIDD, Valuator, Grimsby

I think it goes without saying that Gamey was not flush enough to put up the money himself, therefore it came from one or other of the political parties, and agitation should not cease until the bare naked truth comes out.

My own opinion is that the evidence of Hammond alone is sufficient to brand Stratton guilty of conduct unbecoming a Minister of the Crown.

Gamey's monkeying with the deposit slip brands him as a darn fool and his story about Frank Sullivan lending him $1200.00, brands him as a darn liar.

His story, however, about dividing the $3000.00 with young Sullivan is quite a different thing as that appears to be the usual thing amongst government hangers-on, as may be seen by the fact that Cap Sullivan swore the other day before a Committee of the House, that he had divided the $8,775.00 he made on the Shannon timber deal with one Taylor, a clerk in the crown lands department, without any reason, except that of "friendship".

Taylor's bank account was examined and it was found that this Clerk in a government office, receiving a salary of, say $81400 a year, deposited in the bank on a certain day $2,000, and on another day shortly afterwards over $2,000.

Noow, if an old "hard head" like "Cap" Sullivan gave Taylor a clerk in the Crown Land department over $4,000 for pure "friendship" sake, then it is not unreasonable that Gamey should give Frank Sullivan another clerk in the Government employ $1,500 for helping a deal through.

I am quite satisfied therefore that Gamey got $3,000 somewhere and gave Frank Sullivan half of it.

But when Gamey says that he borrowed $1200 from Frank Sullivan, I think he is a pure unadulterated, dyed-in-the-wool liar. Frank Sullivan ain't in the loaning business you may bet your boots on that.

And when old "Cap" swore that he gave Taylor $4,012.50 out of pure "friendship," he twisted the truth till one couldn't tell whether it was coming in or going out.

When Chancellor Boyd made light of Stratton's endeavor to get Hammond to commit "forgery" how will he be able to punish "forgers" in the future when they come before him in court.

And when Boyd passes over as a mere trifle Stratton's efforts to get Hammond to "forget it" and thus prejure himself, how does he expect to get witnesses in the future to have a proper regard for the truth when before his lordship in court? He certainly cannot blame witnesses if they "forget it" once and a while. Chancellor Boyd you are setting up a high "code of morals" for we "mortals" to go by.

I see by the papers that a man has been at Smithville lecturing on the "moon".

I don't suppose it was the "man-in-the-moon" who was there lecturing, although if he ever does leave the "moon" to go on a lecturing tour, Smithville will be his first crack out of the box.

It is of little account who the "moon" lecturer was, but the effect of his lecture is of great moment. The effect was most disastrous to the people of Smithville.

Immediately after that lecture on the "moon" almost the entire population of Smithville started out to study the "moon" and as a result three men have broken legs, six women have hysterics, four girls have nervous prostration, six people have wandered away into the woods and may never come back, seventeen young men have let their whiskers grow, thirty-two people have become engaged, one man has got drunk and two men have skipped out without leaving the name of their future post office with their creditors.

And these disastrous results were a brought about by that man who came to Smithville to lecture on the "moon".

Immediately after the lecture every man, woman and child in Smithville started in as a "moon" gazer.

Telescopes, microscopes, kalidiascopes, and horoscopes; opera glasses, magnifying glasses, looking glasses, whiskey glasses and spy glasses; tin horns, dinner horns, powder horns, cow's horns and every other old horn, in fact any old thing with a hole in each end of it, was turned on the "moon" from every vantage ground possible.

Men climbed ladders and got on house tops, boys climbed trees, girls got on the back kitchens, while old women had to content themselves with sticking their night caps out of their bedroom windows to gaze upon "Miss Luna" as she swept across the southern sky.

Those who couldn't climb took to the fields and country roads, and in the calm cool night air gazed upon the moon in rapture, or walked hand-in-hand (if it was male and female) in silent but peaceful bliss, (hence so many engagements).

Had the weather kept clear nobody knows what would have happened Smithville. The chances are it would have been depopulated. The smoky weather saved it. The moon could not be seen for several nights and this gave the people a chance to cool down, dress their wounds and bury the dead.

By the way lets not forget business in the mad rush of Politics. What about that battle cry of "build up New Ontario" that rang in my ears last year. How is the "building up" coming along.

I don't see any glowing accounts in the Globe about the number of acres of the "clay belt" that was ploughed this spring.

HAMILTON

Since the Baker's strike in Hamilton the Editor of the Spectator has found out that man cannot live by "booze" alone.

The Judges says that the Gamey money should go to those who can prove their right to it.

Billy Mitchell says it should be divided between Gamey and "Cap" Sullivan.

I'm off on the "Helderleigh" picnic next Friday to the Guelph Model farm to study Agriculture.

I see by "Cap" Sullivan's evidence that he was away running the steamboat "Snowstorm". When "Cap" gets through with Col. Matheson he'll be ready to run the "windstorm" or "hailstorm" or any other "old storm" that comes along.

Ontario is slow! Out in British Columbia they have about four different governments a year. They're all "out for the stuff" and it ain't any hangers-on that get the dough, but the big guns—the premier for instance.

Old Oxford, (England).

There is so much to see in London that one might stay there all summer with profit, but for myself I prefer the parks and country roads outside. We are giving about three weeks to London itself, but not all at once. We seek variety by an occasional excursion. We have seen St. Pauls, Westminster Abbey, the British Museum, the Law Courts, Hyde Park, the Wallace Collection of Curiosities. We have visited Windsor Castle and Hampton Court, and seen the big grape vine which is six feet in diameter at the base. We have walked down Rotten Row, with its stylish equipages and gaily dressed ladies. We have seen the King and Queen, and now we are at Old Oxford for three or four days.

Curiosity enough. Our rooms adjoin the room in which the Martyr, Cranmer, Ridley and Latimer slept the night before they were burned to the stake. This morning we were shown into the room, and truly it is old fashioned and curious.

Yesterday we attended service in Christ Church Cathedral in the morning and in Magdalen College in the evening. The services were all intoned and the music was marvellous. Being Canadians we were given special attention.

This is a wonderful old town, with its twenty-four colleges and curious antiquities.

We have visited a good many of them and to-day through the courtesy of one of the students of Balliol College, we had a seat on the Balliol Barge on the Thames whence we witnessed a college boat race. This is called ‘eighth's week’ here, because each college has a boat named by eight oarsmen. The town is crisscrossed with the elite of England, and hotel charges are all doubled. Linus Woolverton.

Electric Belts.

Editor Independent.

Sir—I have been several times asked the name of the Toronto man who made such strong promises respecting his belt in case it did not cure.

I think, in justice to other dealers, who may be honest, that I should have said at the time, that the firm of F. E. Karn & Co., Victoria St., Toronto, wrote me to say what their belt would do, and in the event of failure, they would refund. The belt failed to do any good, and then Karn repudiated all promises he had made.

I hope your readers will be wiser than me.

Drowned at Grimsby Park.

The body of a little boy named Ronald Boone, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Boone, was found in the water close to the pier at Grimsby Park, Tuesday morning. The lad wandered away from his mother's cottage on Monday evening and after an all-night search he was found at daylight drowned. The funeral will take place Thursday morning to Toronto, service being at the cottage Wednesday evening.

STONEY CREEK.

Fred Jones, of Brooklyn, paid the village a flying visit last week. His friends were sorry to find him in such poor health.

The medicine company have left town after a weeks stay and the local doctors are at work again.

The Masons will hold an excursion this year which no doubt will eclipse any thing of this kind that has ever gone from Stoney Creek. Niagara Falls will probably be the place of resort.

A Moonlight Pastel.

The moonlight fell full upon the green sward of the park at Palm Beach. The moonlight was soft, however, and the moonlight sustain 1 no serious injuries. Two figures might have been seen sitting in a secluded nook. They were economizing space in a painfully evident manner. The voice of the youth rose and fell to the music of the sea, and finally staggered to its feet and remarked:

"Winsome dame, I am in love. I have arrived at this conclusion not hastily, but after careful introspection and experimentation. Since first I met you I have been troubled, my most alarming symptom being an aching void. To-night the throbbing of that vacuum has been so strong that I have been able to locate it in my heart."

The voice of the youth choked with mingled emotion and tobacco, both of which he had been swallowing right along. Spreading a handkerchief upon the ground, he fell upon his knees, severing in his impetuosity the last bond of connection between his suspenders and his sky-blue trousers.

"Oh, fairest of maidens!" he pleaded, "enter now into that emptiness and fill it with thy light and lavender perfume." The fairest of maidens smiled sadly and abruptly. Her face wore that far-away expression so characteristic of Pike's Peak. Her mind was wandering down the dim corridors of memory and had far to go. Her silence had the delicate odor of poppin gum. The youth pressed her for an answer until his arm ached with the exertion.

Finally, after consulting her notebook, she made reply:

"At present I am heart-free. However, Jimmy Brown is scheduled for two weeks from next Monday; until then I am thine."

As the fateful words fell from her lips the youth caught them before they hit the ground and pressed them to his bosom. The maid leaned over and planted a kiss on his youthful brow, coyly removing her teeth as she did so.

After regulating their hearts so as to run neck and neck, and combining their thoughts into one idea, they wandered out into the cold, unfeeling world, and naught could be heard in the palm-punctured atmosphere save the strident bawoo of the dyspeptic toy alligator.

The Englishman Impaled.

War between the Scotch and the English is on once more. This time swords and long bows are not the implements of vengeance, but the pens of authors. Not long ago the publication of "The Unspeakable Scot" aroused much resentment among the dwellers in Caledonia by its unjust criticism of the Scotch people. A counter-thrust has now appeared from the pen of Angus McNeill, entitled "The Egregious English." This is made up of scathing irony, sarcasm, criticism, and hypercriticism, directed against the English people and some of their customs and institutions.

In brief, Mr. McNeill says England is decadent. Her men of business are "Wile boys;" her journalists are tied to apron-strings; her employed men are servile slaves; her women are as homely as Don Quixote's duenna, and with no redeeming qualities of mind; her army is weighted down with commissioned officers, knowing well how to climb the social ladder, but understanding nothing and caring as much about how to scale a kopje; her clergy are debased creatures, dishing up to a glutinous public pabulum containing no ingredients of true religion or ethics; her politicians are wire-pullers; her poets died long ago; and her fiction writers are skilled only in glossing over the vulgar and presenting the manufacture to an undiscerning public. And so on through the list of subjects to the last, "The Beloved"—the Englishman abroad—well described in the irony of the author as follows: "He drops fatness and blessings as he walks. He smiles benignly and graciously and 'I am glad to see you all-looking-so-well.' And before him runs one in plash, crying: 'Who is the most popular man of this footstool?' And all the people shall rejoice and say, 'The Englishman—God bless him!'"

 Mrs. Kent and daughter, of Brantford, are guests at J. B. Brant's.

Miss Mary Field who has been visiting her brother at Walkerton for some weeks, has returned home.

Miss Mary Tait is visiting in Toronto for a few days.

Miss Nellie Walker left on Friday for her new home in Oregon. Her many friends wish her a safe journey and much happiness. Her sister, Miss Belle, accompanied her as far as Chicago.

Dr. and Mrs. Morgan, of Hamilton, spent Saturday with their parents.

Miss Nettie Norris, of Toronto, spent a few days with her grandma, Mrs. Copeland.

W. H. Morgan's many friends were pleased to see him in our village again.

About 100 from the village and surrounding country went to Guelph on Monday to visit the "Model Farm."

Miss Jessie Collins who is in training at the Belleville General Hospital has just recently passed her second years examination with honors. She is now senior nurse of the graduating class. Miss Collins will be in Smithville the latter part of this month to spend two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Collins.

Roxburgh-Brant Nuptials.

At the Presbyterian Church, Smithville, Ont., on Wednesday, June 3rd, at high noon, a charming wedding took place, when Miss Elizabeth Brant, daughter of John B. Brant, was wedded to Rev. F. D. Roxburgh, M. A., pastor of the church.

The church was elaborately decorated with flowers and the ceremony was conducted by Rev. R. Martin, M. A., of Erskine Church, Hamilton, a former college chum of the groom.

Preceding the ceremony were the music of Wagner's wedding march and the appearance of little flower girls who carried the ring concealed in the flowers.

The attractive bride wore a rich gown of white peau de soie and carried white roses. Miss Eleanor Smith, of Hamilton, and Miss Louise Bridgman, of Fort Erie, maids to the bride, looked exceedingly dainty in gowns of cream cloth and lace, and carried pink and white roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Gerald S. Roxburgh, of Toronto, and by Mr. A. J. Raddon, B. A., of Peterboro.

The bride's mother was gowned in lavender crepe de chene, and many other gorgeous gowns were conspicuous. At the tastefully decorated home of the bride's father, a reception was afterwards given, when the many friends offered their good wishes.

The gifts to the bride were many and handsome, the groom's gift to the bride being a gold watch and chain, and to the maids gold pins.

After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Roxburgh left by the lake trip for Montreal.

Beamsville, June 10.

On Sunday last, on account of the absence of Rev. R. W. Wright, B.D., at conference, the Methodist and Presbyterian churches held united services. Rev. Dr. Macintyre conducting both the service in the Presbyterian church in the morning and that in the Methodist church in the evening.

Police Magistrate Riggins held a session of his Court on Saturday morning last, to enquire into a charge of illegally causing a disturbance by firing fire-crackers upon King St., preferred against three young men. After examining several witnesses the Magistrate agreed with the defendants council, N. C. Macintyre, that the charge had not been established by the evidence submitted and consequently dismissed the action after speaking for a short time upon the nature of the charge and warning all present to be careful of their conduct upon the public thoroughfares of the town.

M. G. McConachie, of Osgoode Hall Toronto, spent Sunday as the guest of Mr. J. P. Osborne.

Dr. Floyd Nelles, of Windsor, spent Friday in town renewing his many old acquaintances.

The many friends of Dr. Ed. J. Davey, a recent brilliant graduate, of Toronto University Medical College and who is at present a house surgeon in one of Buffalo's leading hospitals will regret to hear of his serious illness there. The doctor has had several attacks of appendicitis. Last week he was stricken with a much more severe attack than any he has had before, and as a result he was forced to undergo a severe operation, but at time of writing is doing very nicely.

Another of Beamsville's old citizens passed away in the person of Dewitt Fleming at the age of 65 years on Monday last, at his residence on Ontario street. The deceased had been in a poor state of health for some time and his death was not unexpected by his friends and relatives. The deceased had been a citizen of Beamsville all his life, and although never taking any active part in public matters was well known to a large number of citizens, being as it were, one of the few remaining pioneers. The funeral takes place to-day from his late residence, where service will be held, thence to Mt. Osborne Cemetery for interment.

If you want to keep cool don't forget McNeil's ice cream parlor, bright and attractive.

Messrs. H. Sinclair, C. E. Riggins, J. W. Buck and A. B. Tufford, were in St. Kitts on Tuesday attending the session of the High Court of Justice.

The "gallant defenders" of our homes and country left on Tuesday for Niagara where the volunteers are in camp for two weeks. The Co. from here presented a very good appearance and seemed to be a well trained body of men, while Beamsville was distinctly military during their stay here.

A patent medicine vender disposing of remedies for all the ills which flesh is heir to, struck town on Tuesday night and gave a public exhibition upon King street before a large and apparently admiring crowd. Taken on the whole his endeavor to amuse and entertain his audience were well received and as a matter of fact demanded it, as many of the sketches were very good.

Everyone is going to McNeil's for ice cream these hot days.

County Council.

The County Council having spent Tuesday morning in the inspection of the Industrial Home and the county jail re-assembled in the afternoon at 2.35 o'clock. Warden Jackson presiding and all the members present.

The minutes of the previous session were read and confirmed.

The clerk read the resignation of W. B. Calder as member of the High School Board at Grimsby.

It was arranged that the council should meet the magistrates of the county on Thursday morning, re-appointment of constables.

The council adjourned and Industrial Home committee met.

In committee Joseph Connell was granted one-half the price of a passage to Ireland.

In the printing and building committee tenders were opened for coal as follows:—

W. Hutchison, egg coal $6.75 to Sept.

then $7.00.

D. Dittick, grate $6.80 to Sept. 1st, then $7.10.

W. H. McCordick, $6.80 to Sept. 1st, then $7.10.

E. D. Voisard $6.75 to Sept. 1st, then $7.00.

Wm. Leeson $6.80 to Sept. 1st, then $7.10.

Commissioner Calder considered the prices too high and thought the dealers in the west end of the county should be asked to tender. The matter was left over.

WEDNESDAY SESSION.

The council met pursuant to adjournment. All present.

The printing and building committee recommended improvements to Registry Office amounting to $1500. That coal tender be not accepted and that a long list of accounts be passed. Report adopted.

Industrial Home committee report was read and adopted.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

At the morning session Com. Dalrymple, chairman of road and bridge committee recommended repairs to Robins' bridge, Wellandport bridge, Laidlaw bridge, Twelve Mile Creek bridge and the Bartlett bridge over the Twenty. Report adopted.

Com. Crow gave notice of a by-law to regulate speed of automobiles on county roads.

At the afternoon session leave of absence was granted to Clerk and Treasurer. $10 was granted to Hospital for Sick Children. A deputation was received from the County Agricultural Society.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

When the members of the County Council assembled Friday afternoon, they at once went into committee on the Queenston and Grimsby stone road, with Com. Crow in the chair.

The question of the H. G. & B. Electric Railway was taken up, and it was decided that the company be instructed to use their tracks through Grimsby Village, in accordance with the instructions of the Road Superintendent and the Village Council.

Mr. Geo. E. Waller, general manager of the H. G. & B. road, addressed the committee, asking a further extension of time for the completion of the Vineland extension. He stated that the company had done all in their power to complete the work in the prescribed time, but they had experienced considerable difficulty in connection with the Gibson Tramway. He asked that the time be extended until August 15th. The request was granted on motion of Commissioners Dalrymple and Stewart, subject to a proper agreement.

Com. J. M. Ness then took the chair, and the council went into committee on education.

A resolution was adopted making the High School grants the same as last year, and which were as follows:—Niagara, $400; Beamsville, $530; Grimsby, $500; Smithville, $685; St. Catharines Collegiate Institute, $1165.

The next question taken up was the appointment of High School Trustees for the various vacancies throughout the county, and for a time this subject waxed rather warm, particularly in connection with the appointment to fill the vacancy on the Grimsby High School Board occasioned by the resignation of Mr. W. B. Calder, now a member of the County Council.

C. W. VanDuzer was appointed to Grimsby High School Board.

Kipling on the Drink Evil.

Rudyard Kipling has much to his credit, but there is a little bit in his "American Notes" that should place his name high up among the saints of temperance. Telling of how, in a concert hall in Buffalo, N. Y., he saw two young men get two girls drunk, and then lead them reeling down a dark street, he says: "Then, recanting previous opinions, I became a prohibitionist. Better it is that a man should go without his beer in public places, and content himself with swearing at the narrow-mindedness of the majority; better it is to poison the inside with very vile temperance drinks, and to buy larger furtively at back doors, than to bring temptation to the lips of young fools, such as the four I had seen. I understand now why the preachers rage against drink. I have said, 'There is no harm in it if taken moderately,' and yet my own demand for beer helped directly to send those two girls reeling down the dark street to—God alone knows what end. If liquor is worth drinking, it is worth taking a little trouble to come at—such as a man will undergo to compass his own desires. It is not good that we should let it lie before the eyes of children, and I have been a fool in writing to the contrary.—Universalist Leader.

The Dominion Alliance has "scratched" premier Ross' name off its list of Vice President.

Yes and Premier Ross has "scratched" the Dominion Alliance of his list of friends.

I says to Bill Fitch the other day, well the Judges have declared that Stratton is "innocent".

Oh they're slow says Bill, Stratton swore he was "innocent" several weeks ago.

Well, I'll acknowledge that A. E. Ames can beat me at one thing. I never expect to be able to fail for $7,500,000.

I have heard of some peculiar decisions, handed out by Judges in my time, but here's one that caps the whole bunch. Justice Street is responsible for it.

R. E. Denison, private banker of Niagara-on-the-Lake had his vault door blown off last summer and a large amount of money stolen. He entered an action against J. & J. Taylor, of Toronto, Safe Makers, for breach of warranty and damages on account of their representing that the vault door was "burglar proof". Here is the decision of the trial Judge:

Denison v. Taylor.—Judgment (H.) in action tried at St. Catharines. Action by a private banker carrying on business at Niagara-on-the-Lake against a firm of safe makers carrying on business at Toronto to recover damages for breach of warranty, and misrepresentations upon the sale of a fire and burglar-proof vault door.

Held, that the warranties given by defendants were broken, but a loss of the money contained in the vault was not a natural consequence of the defects in the vault door. The plaintiff is entitled to recover as damages the price which he paid to defendants for the door. Judgment for plaintiff for $250 and costs of the action. I. F. Hellmuth, K. C., and Shirley Denison for plaintiff. W. Cassels K. C., and W. H. Blake, A. C., for defendants.

What do you think of that? "Held that the warranties were broken, but a loss of the money contained in the vault was not a natural consequence of the 'defects' in the vault door."

Of course not! The loss of the money was not a "natural" consequence of the "defects" in the door, but was the "natural" consequence of it being a darn thief that tore the door off.

Had it been an honest man that tore the door off the vault the "natural" consequence would have been that the money would not have been stolen.

Or had the thief been blown to the devil when he was dynamiting the door, the "natural" consequence would have been that R. E. Denison would still have the coin, instead of the other fellow.

Or had the policeman wakened up and come along, or had the burglar taken a fit, or had Denison come along himself or had the bank caught fire or had a rooster crowded in an adjoining hen coop, then the "natural" consequence would have been that the money wouldn't have been stolen.

But none of these things happened and as the burglar went through that vault door like a streak of greased lightning through a hay stack, I think that that money was stolen as a "natural" consequence of a rotten piece of workmanship on the part of the people who made the door and they should be made pay for all losses.

My friend in a near by city whom I had chided for using a post card when writing to me is a hard one to kill. I thought I had put a quietus on him by my remarks last week but he bobs up serenely again this week by writing me asking me to insert the following advertisement, which I am quite willing to do at 10c per line.

J. W. Brennan writing from California says that he can scarcely write me for thinking about his lady friends in the East.

J. W.'s mind shouldn't be overburdened now with thoughts of young ladies that he didn't bother his head about when here. I suppose though that he now looks back and frets over the "wasted opportunities" of the past, poor fellow.

One Bible truth there is in which Girls have abiding trust:
Our wives especially believe That "man is made of dust."

The tramp trudged on all patiently,
Nor undertook his fate to blame—
I'll make believe I'm playing golf
"And walking's only in the game."

There was a young woman from Wilts,
Who walked through Scotland on stilts,
Said the people, "how shocking,
To show so much stocking!"
Said she, "pray how about kilts".

There's labor troubles everywhere now-a-days. Even Winona has them. I was talking to Mr. Hugh Carpenter, of Winona, the other day, and he was madder than a wet hen, on the labor question.

According to Hugh's story he hired a man, one E. McKenzie in the spring at high wages for the season and to behold! Mac, skipped out the other night taking his clothes away between sundown and sunrise and left Hughie a sadder and a madder man.

History repeats itself. A few years ago men were begging for work and without a doubt the time will come again. As the cycle of time rolls on men who are now "running away" from work will be "running after it" just as hard.

The Terrible Hollow

even with a chap like Warrigal. Besides, I knew it would vex Starlight, and for his sake I would have given a trifle if hadn't happened. However, I didn't see how Warrigal could do me or Jim any harm without hurting him, and I knew he'd have cut off his hand rather than any harm should come to Starlight that he could help.

So I got ready. Dad and I had our tea together pretty comfortable, and had a longish talk. The old man was rather down in the mouth for him. He said he somehow didn't expect the fakeness to turn out well. "You're going away," he said, "from where you're safe, and there's a many things goes against a man in our line, once he's away from his own beat. You never know how you may be given away. The Captain's all right here, when he's me to look after him, though he does swear at me sometimes; but he was took last. He was out on his own hook, and it's my belief he'll be took this time if he isn't very careful. He's a good man to fight through things when once he's in the thick of 'em, but he ain't careful enough to keep dark and close when the play isn't good. You draw along steady by yourself till you meet Jim—that's my advice to ye."

"I mean to do that. I shall work my way down to old George's place, and get on with stock or something till we all meet at Cunnamulla. After that there ain't much chance of these police here grabbing us."

"Unless you're followed up," says the old man. "I've known chaps to go a deuce of a way, once they got on the track, and there's getting some smart fellows among 'em now—native-born chaps as'll be as good at picking up the tracks as you and Jim."

"Well, we must take our chance. I'm sorry, for one thing, that I had that barney with Warrigal. It was all his fault. But I had to give him a hardish crack or two. He'd turn dog on me and Jim, and in a minute, if he saw his way without hurting Starlight."

"He can't do it," says dad; "it's sink or swim with the lot of you. And he daren't either, not he," says father, beginning to growl out his words. "If I ever heard he'd given away any one in the lot I'd have his life, if I had to poleaxe him in George Street. He knows me too."

We sat yarning away pretty late. The didn't say it, but I made out that he was sorry enough for that part of his life which had turned out so bad for us boys, and for mother and Aileen. Bad enough he was in a kind of way, old dad, but he wasn't all bad, and I believe if he could have begun again and thought of what misery he was going to bring on the lot of us he would never have gone on the cross. It was too late, too late now, though, to think of that.

Towards morning I heard the old dog growl, and then the tramp of a horse's feet. Starlight rode up to the fire and let his horse go, then walked straight in to his corner and threw himself down without speaking. He had had a precious long ride, and a fast one by the look of his horse. The other one he had let go as soon as he came into the Hollow; but none of the three would be a bit the worse after a few hours' rest. The horses, of course, were spare ones, and not wanted again for a bit.

Next morning it was 'sharp's the word, and no mistake. I felt a deal smarter on it than yesterday. When you've fairly started for the road half the journey's done. It's the thinking of this and forgetting that, and wondering whether you haven't left behind the 'other thing, that's the miserable part of going a journey; when you're once away, no matter what's left behind, you can get on some way or other.

We didn't start so over and above early though Starlight was up as fresh as paint at sunrise, you'd thought he hadn't ridden a yard the day before. Even at the very last there's a lot of things to do and to get. But we all looked slippy and didn't talk much, so that we got through what we had to do, and had all the horses saddled and packed by about eight o'clock. Even Warrigal had partly got over his temper. Of course I told Starlight about it. He gave him a good rowing, and told him he deserved another hammering, which he had a good mind to give him, if we hadn't been starting for a journey. Warrigal didn't say a word to him. He never did. Starlight told me on the quiet, though, he was sorry it happened, though it's the rascal's own fault, and served him right. But he's a revengeful beggar," he says, "and that he would play you some dog's trick if he wasn't afraid of me, you may depend your life on."

"Now," says he, "we must make our little arrangements. I shall be, somewhere about Cunnamulla by the end of this month" (it was only the first week). "Jim knows that we are to meet there, and if we manage that all right I think the greatest part of the danger will be over. I shall get right across by Dandalo to the back blocks of the West Hogan country, between it and the Lachlan. There are tracks through the endless mallee scrub, only known to the tribes in the neighbourhood, and a few half-castes like Warrigal, that have been stock-riding about them. Sir Ferdinand and his troopers might just as well hunt for a stray Arab in the deserts of the Esphrates. If I'm alive—mind you, alive—I'll be at Cunnamulla on the day I mean. And now, good-bye, old fellow. Whatever my sins have been, I've been true to you and your people in the past, and if Aileen and I meet across the seas, as I hope, the new life may partly atone for the old one."

Shorter Business Hours.

This store was the first in the Niagara District to give shorter business hours at the start of summer. That was three years ago and up to this year we have closed during the months of July and August at FIVE. Our zeal to shorten the business hours of our employees has persuaded us to make the early closing this year during June, July and August, giving our workers a part of each day as a holiday during these heated months.

Store Closes Every Day at Five Now.

and will close five days of every week from now till the first of September at the same hour. Saturday (sixth day) 10 p.m. Our duty to the public at this point is almost counter to our desires to favor our workers, but with your assistance of early shopping we will be able to adhere to our schedule. Kindly shop early, and come any day in the week up till FIVE, and Saturday TEN.

THE Terrible Hollow

Or Bush Life in Australia.

by the author of "The Squatter's Dream"

I got back to the Hollow right enough, and for once in a way it seemed as if the luck was on our side. Maybe it was going to turn—who was to know? There had been men who had been as deep in it as any of us that had got clean away to other countries and lived safe and comfortable to the day of their death—didn't die so soon either—lived to a good round age, and had wives and children round them that never knew but what they'd been as good as the best. That wouldn't be our case; but still if we once were able to put the sea between us and our old life the odds would be all in our favour instead of being a hundred to one that we weren't placed and notakers.

Starlight was glad enough to see me back, and like everything he tackled, had been squaring it all for our getting away with head and hand. We wanted to take everything with us that could do us any good, naturally. Father and he had made it right with someone they knew at Turon to take the gold and give them a price for it—not all it was worth, but something over three-fourths value. The rest he was to keep for his share, for trouble and risk. There was some risk, no doubt, in dealing with us, but all the gold that was bought in these days wasn't square, not by a lot. But there was no way of swearing to it. Gold was gold, and once it was in the bank it was lumped up with the rest. There was a lot of things to be thought of before we regularly made a move for good and all; but when you make up your mind for a dart, it's wonderful how things shape. We hadn't much trouble dividing the gold, and what cash there was we could whack easy enough. There was the live stock that was running in the Hollow, of course. We couldn't well take them with us, except a few of the horses. We made a deal at last with father for them. We took my share and Starlight's, and paid us in cash out of his share of the notes. All we wanted was a couple of horses each, one to carry a pack, one to ride.

As for dad, he told us out, plump and plain, that he wasn't going to shift. The Hollow was good enough for him, and there he was going to stop. If Jim and I and Starlight chose to try and make blank emigrants of ourselves, well and good. He didn't see as they'd have such a rosy time getting over to these new townships on the other side. We might get took in, and wish we was back again before all was said and done. But some people could never let well alone. Here we had everything that any man in his senses could wish for, and we wasn't contented. Every one was going to cut away and leave him; he'd be all by himself, with no one but the dog for company, and he as miserable as a handkerchief; but no one cared a blank brass farden about that.

'Come with us, governor,' says Starlight, 'have a cruise round the world, and smell salt water again. You've not been boxed up in the bush all your life, though you've been a goodish while there. Make a start, and bring old Crib too.'

'I'm too old and getting stiff in the joints,' says dad, brightening up a bit, 'or I don't say as I wouldn't. Don't mind my growling. But I'm bound to be a bit lonely like when you are all drawn off the camp. No! take your own way and I'll take mine.'

'Next Monday ought to see us off,' says Starlight. 'We have got the gold and cash part all right. I've had that money paid to Knightley's credit in the Australian Bank I promised him, and got a receipt for it.'

'That's just like yer,' says father, 'and a rank soft thing for a man as has seen the world to drop into. Lookin' yer share of the five hundred quid, and then dropping a couple of hundred notes at one gamble, besides buying a horse yer could have took for nothing. He'll never bring twenty pound again, neither.'

'Always pay my debts,' says Starlight. 'Always did, and always will. As for the horse—a bargain, a bargain.'

'And a dashed bad bargain too. Why didn't ye turn parson instead of taking to the bush?' says father, with a grin. 'Dashed if I ain't seen some parsons that could give you odds and walk round ye at horse-dealin'.'

Black Hair

"I have used your Hair Vigor for five years and am greatly pleased with it. It certainly restores the original color to gray hair. It keeps my hair soft."—Mrs. Helen Kilkenny, New Portland, Me.

Ayer's Hair Vigor has been restoring color to gray hair for fifty years, and it never fails to do this work, either.

You can rely upon it for stopping your hair from falling, for keeping your scalp clean, and for making your hair grow.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

'You take your own way, Ben, and I'll take mine,' says Starlight rather fierce, and then father left off and went to do something or other, while we two took our horses and rode out. We hadn't a long time to be in the old Hollow now. It had been a good friend to us in time of need, and we were sorry in a kind of way to leave it. We were going to play for a big stake, and if we lost we shouldn't have another throw in.

Our horses were in great buckle now; they hadn't been doing much lately. I had the one I'd brought with me, and a thoroughbred brown horse that had been broken in the first season we came there.

Starlight was to ride Rainbow, of course, and he had great picking before he made up his mind what to choose for second horse. At last he pitched upon a thoroughbred bay mare named Locket that had been stolen from a mining township the other side of the country. She was the fastest mare they'd ever bred—sound, and a weight-carrier too.

'I think I'll take Locket after all,' says he, after thinking about it best part of an hour. 'She's very fast and a stayer. Good-tempered too, and the old horse has taken up with her. It will be company for him.'

'Take your own way,' I said, 'but I wouldn't chance her. She's known to a lot of jockey-boys and hangers-on. They could swear to that white patch on her neck among a thousand.'

'If you come to that, Rainbow is not an every-day horse, and I can't leave him behind, can I? I'll ship him, if I can, that's more. But it won't matter much, for we'll have to take back tracks all the way. You didn't suppose we were to ride along the mail road, did you?'

'I didn't suppose anything,' says I, 'but that we were going to clear out the safest way we could. If we're to do the swell business we'd better do it apart, or else put an advertisement into the Turon Star that Starlight, Marston, and Co. are giving up business and going to leave the district, all accounts owing to be sent in by a certain date.'

'A first-rate idea,' says he. 'I'm dashed if I don't do it. There's nothing like making one's exit in good form. How savage Morring will be! Thank you for the hint, Dick.'

There was no use talking to him when he got into this sort of humour. He was the most mad, reckless character I ever came across, and any kind of checking only seemed to make him worse. So I left him alone, for fear he should want to do something more venturesome still, and went on with my packing and getting ready for the road.

We fixed up the lot to start on the Monday, and got as far away the first couple of days as we could manage. We expected to get a good start by making a great push the first day or two, and as the police would be thrown off the scent in a way we settled—and a good dodge it was—we should have all the more time to be clear New South Wales before they regularly dropped that we were giving them leg bail for it.

The Sunday before Starlight started away by himself, taking a couple of good horses with him—one he led, and a spare saddle too. He took nothing but his revolver, and didn't say where he was going, but I pretty well guessed to say good-bye to Aileen. Just as he started he looked back and says—

'I'm going for a longish ride to-day, Dick, but I shall be here late if I'm back at all. If anything happens to me my share of what there is I give to her, if she will take it. If not, do the best you can with it for her benefit.'

He didn't take Warrigal with him, which I was sorry for, as the half-caste and I didn't hit it well together, and when we were by ourselves he generally managed to do or say something he knew I didn't like. I kept my hands off him on account of Starlight, but there was a time my fingers itched to be at him, and I could hardly keep from knocking some of the sulkiness out of him. This day, somehow, I was not in the best of tempers myself. I had a good lot on my mind. Starting away seems always a troublesome, bothering sort of thing, and if a man's at all inclined to be cranky it'll come out then.

Next day we were going to start on a long voyage, in a manner of speaking, and whether we should have a fair wind or the vessel of our fortune would be wrecked and we go down with it no one could say. This is how it happened. One of the horses was bad to catch, and took a little trouble in the yard. Most times Warrigal was quiet enough with 'em, but when he got regular into a rage he'd skin a horse alive, I really believe. Anyhow, he began to hammer the colt with a roping-pole, and as the yard was that high that no beast could jump it he had him at his mercy. I wouldn't have minded a lick or two, but he went on and on, nearly knocking the poor brute down every time, till I could stand it no longer, and told him to drop it.

He gave me some saucy answer, until at last I told him I'd make him. He dared me, and I rushed at him. I believe he'd have killed me that minute if he'd had the chance, and he made a deuced good offer at it.

He stuck to his roping-stick—a good, heavy-ended gum sapling, six or seven feet long—and as I came at him he struck at my head with such vengeance that, if it had caught me fair, I should never have kicked. I made a spring to one side, and it hit me a crack on the shoulder that wasn't a good thing in itself. I was in at him before he could raise his hands, and let him have it right and left.

Down he went and the stick atop of him. He was up again like a wild cat, and at me hammer and tongue—but he didn't get the weight, though he was quick and smart with his hands. I drew off and knocked him clean off his pins. Then he saw it wasn't good enough, and gave it best.

'Never mind, Dick, Marston,' says he, as he walked off, and he fixed his eyes on me that savage and deadly-looking, with the blood running down his face, that I couldn't help shivering a bit, you'll pay for this. I owe it you and Jim, one apiece.'

'Confound you,' I said, 'it's all your own fault. Why couldn't you stop ill-using the horse? You don't like being hit yourself. How do you think he likes it?'

'What business that of yours?' he said. 'You mind your work and I'll mind mine. This is the worst day's work you've done this year, and so I tell you.'

He went away to his gully then, and except doing one or two things for Starlight would not lift his hand for any one that day.

I was sorry for it when I come to think. I daresay I might have got him round with a little patience and humbugging.

It's always a mistake to lose your temper and make enemies; there's no knowing what harm they may do ye. People like us oughtn't to throw away a chance,

Drs. KENNEDY & KERGAN

The Leading Specialists of America. 25 Years in Detroit. Bank Security.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant they may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects.

The DRAIN, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and dependency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and healthy. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or No Pay. We treat and cure: Varicose, Blood Diseases, Stricture, Gleet, Emissions, Urinary Brains, Spermatorrhoea, Unnatural Discharges, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

CONSULTATION FREE.
